

Remote Viewing and Seeking the True Way of a Kendōka

by E., TMI Remote Viewing Participant and Martial Arts Champion

The sword is used to achieve peace outwardly, but also inwardly through purifying the mind. As one trains and empowers the body, one must also purify and refine the mind/spirit ... Similarly, through remote viewing (RV) training we learn to be vigilant of thoughts ... Read More

A Focus Level for All Seasons—Bob Monroe’s "Hidden" Gem

by John Kortum, TMI Trainer, Author, and Medical Intuitive

... Occasionally an audible voice would offer me guidance, and three times the voice saved my life. I also noticed that whenever I looked at people, I could see the quality of their health. ... I noticed textures in people's appearance that correlated with each of the body's organs and systems. Read More.

Resolving the Five Most Common Fears about Out-of-Body Experiences

by William Buhlman, TMI OBE Guest Trainer

From his April 2019 newsletter - Nonphysical realities are highly thought responsive. We are never objective observers when we enter nonphysical environments; we are interactive participants. Our thoughts and beliefs, whether conscious or subconscious, possess immense creative potential. Every thought is a powerful projection of energy. Read More.

JUNE 1-7

From the Executive Director

Thank you to all of The Monroe Institute's donors, friends, board, trainers, and staff, for making 2018 another remarkable year for TMI. I hope you will read our Annual Report for 2018 for a summary of last year's accomplishments, an overview of our performance in numerous areas, and how we are making a difference around the world.
